In addition to his professional obligations, Bob was deeply involved in the community. For more than 30 years, Bob served on various boards at the Methodist Home for Children, reaching out to children, youth and families in need.

In his precious leisure time, Bob was an accomplished amateur genealogist who traced his family's American roots to 1678. He loved spending time with his family, which including a cadre of 10 grandchildren ranging from ages 8-21.
