

Dr. Gerardina Martin, D.P.A.

Gerardina is an academic leader and educator committed to service-learning, civic engagement, and preparing students to contribute meaningfully to their communities and professions.

Dr. Martin is Chair and Associate Professor in the Honors College at West Chester University of Pennsylvania and also serves as Assistant Director. Her work integrates rigorous academics with community-based learning, engaging students with local nonprofit partners and real-world challenges to promote sustainable, inclusive service and positive social impact.

Her work focuses on how students learn and how education can drive social change. She is dedicated to fostering diversity and inclusion in the classroom and to developing thoughtful, engaged citizens and leaders. Dr. Martin holds a Doctor of Public Administration from West Chester University, along with advanced degrees from the University of Phoenix and West Chester University.